

An economy without financial literacy is like a landscape with no water...

THE THIRST REMAINS

DID YOU KNOW?

- 84% of college students have a credit card—half have four or more;
- The median debt for college freshmen in 2008 was $939, nearly triple the number in 2004; and
- 64% of college students wish they would have received financial management education in high school.

The Actuarial Foundation developed Building Your Future to reach these individuals before they face the challenges of college and life on their own.

ABOUT THE AWARD-WINNING BUILDING YOUR FUTURE PROGRAM

At a time of widespread economic turmoil and financial challenges, our teens must be taught how to manage money wisely so they can make smart decisions today and in the future. Building Your Future will give teens a reservoir of financial knowledge they can draw upon for the rest of their lives. You can view the Building Your Future curriculum at: www.ActuarialFoundation.org/programs/youth/BuildingYourFuture.shtml

THE THIRST REMAINS IN HIGH SCHOOL CLASSROOMS

Your gift of $250 through THE THIRST REMAINS campaign will provide one high school classroom with the Building Your Future curriculum. You can select a school from the Foundation's waiting list of hundreds of schools or choose your own school. Perhaps you would like to benefit your alma mater, a neighborhood school, or your child or grandchild's school.
